Funds Gone, Eunice Home Was Ordered Closed, but Good Friends Give Aid.

LITTLE MOTHERS REJOICE

Sure Now of Their Tribune Vacation-Boys Back from the Berkshires, While Others Take Their Places.

There are at least one hundred happy girls in New York this morning, Yesterday morning they were a very disappointed and downhearted lot. The reaso for their sudden accession of good spirits is that they are now certain of a vacation in the country whereas yesterday the prospect had seemingly faded from view for this year Two days ago the order was given for the closing of Eunice Home, the place to which the Tribune Fresh Air Fund sends its "little mothers" for summer The closing was ordered because the funds contributed for the support of the work at this home had been exhausted.

The bad news came to the ears of Mrs. L. G. Reed, of New York, one of the trustees of the Chapel Hill Fresh Al Mission, the society which owns the Eunice Home property and which preents the use of it each year to the Tribune Fresh Air Fund. Knowing the great need that exists for the sort of Fresh Air work done at Eunice Home and the entirely inadequate provision that is made to meet it. Mrs. Reed determined to see if the funds necessary to keep the place open for the remainder of the Fresh Air season could not be provided She set herself to the task and in a short time was able to promise that the needed money would be forthcoming. Her efforts and the generosity of the others who have contributed to the fund for the purpose have made possible the vacations of the hundred who are so happy this morning. This will make the total number of girls sent to Eunice Home this year 500.

Fifty Tribune Fresh Air boys arrived home yesterday from a two weeks' stay at Interlaken, Mass., the quaint little Berkshire village where St. Helen's Home is situated. They were brown as the proverbial berry and as healthy and boisterous as the proverbial boy. Great were the tales they had to tell of swimming in the Stockbridge Bowl and campmg o' nights on its shores. Fifty other lads bound for St. Helen's passed these boys near Chatham, N. Y., and there was a great interchange of salutes as the trains sped by Reports from Ashford Hill, the largest of the Tribune homes, indicate that the children there are having the best of times. On Thursday night the boys gave a cakewalk for the amusement of the girls. Yesterday the home moved en masse over to the banks of the Hudson for a day's picnicking. Last night-that is to say, from 6 to 8 o'clock-there was a dance for the children in the play paillion. This was monopolized chiefly by the girls, the boys for the most part disdaining to participate.

LEWIS HORNBLOWER DEAD Said He Would Rather Die than Live in Johnson City.

[By Telegraph to The Tribune.] Johnson City, Tenn., Aug. 22.-The body of Lewis Hornblower, son of W. B. Hornblower, the New York lawyer and financier, was taken from here at noon to day for New York, accompanied by widow and members of the family. Hornblower died early this morning, after all that medical science could do had been done in an effort to save his life. Two special trains carrying the most noted surgeons in the South were hurried to Johnson City. From the statements that were made by young Hornblower there is no question that the self-inflicted pistol wound which caused his death was fired with suicidal intent. He stated to one of the physicians that he was a poor shot or he would not have needed the services of the doctors. He said that he would
